So the diagram above shows you that with 20 star fortresses over your limit (all filled with solar panels) you will generate an extra 500EC - 1000EC depending on bonuses. This concludes the best strategy: Always stay over limit.

My new favourite thing: Solar panels

Filling up starbases with solar panels are really good now! After a few techs each one gives about 10 energy. They compete with anchorages, but they can really power up your economy.

What the heck happened to solar panels? : r/Stellaris

Solar Panels are a gestalt-exclusive building. Trade Modules are now your starbases' "energy" production, and you'll need to safe-guard your Trade routes from piracy.

non-gestalt Solar Panels :: Stellaris General Discussions

I can't seem to find a non-gestalt (only machine intelligence) that can build solar panels on space stations (seems to be replaced with trade hubs for everyone else). Stellaris v2.2.4 DLC

Why are solar panels more than 10x better than Offworld Trading ...

You cant reasonably compare trade hubs to solar panels, because they are doing very different things, yet solar panels are a stable source of energy, while trade hubs are high risk high reward modules, very specific, and strategically placed, can ...

Why are solar panels more than 10x better than Offworld Trading ...

It's incredibly efficient in the early game when Gestalts will be building their first solar panels, because it breaks the limit on building construction, alloys, and science (if hives) being gated by a purchase of 52 minerals a month before you employ super-inefficient miners.

Solar Panel Network and Energy Credits : r/Stellaris

Solar panels are generally not worth the cost on a starbase. If your economy is great in every other way then monthly trades of alloy's can ride you over on energy credits until you can build them up. Generally the best sources of energy credits are generator districts, space based mining, and trade.
